	When Goyal and his wife, Anita, started Jet in 1993, state-run Air India was the only formidable opponent, and the country's aviation market was just taking off. Goyal's pitch was ensuring the country's biggest private carrier had impeccable service - a world-class product built in India. Jet's problems began when it embarked on an aggressive international expansion plan, said an industry executive who has been associated with the airline. The carrier ordered 22 wide-body aircraft for delivery over about 18 months, starting in 2006, depleting cash. Then Jet bought a struggling Indian airline called Sahara for 14.5 billion rupees ($209 million) in 2007 that had an ageing fleet and did not fit Jet's corporate culture. Meanwhile, a newcomer, low-cost carrier IndiGo, had begun chipping away at Jet's market share with cheap fares. In 2013, Jet was close to running out of cash, but survived collapse when Abu Dhabi's Etihad Airways bought a 24 percent stake in the Indian airline. As part of the deal, Etihad also bought three pairs of Jet's landing slots at London's Heathrow airport and 51 percent stake in its frequent flyer program. To compete with low-cost carriers, Jet has lowered prices without reducing its expensive services. High fuel prices and hefty taxes have compounded the spending issues. Jet had been constantly incurring losses since 2007-08."Buying Sahara was a big strategic mistake by Jet. This happened at a time when Jet was growing aggressively on the international front and facing tremendous competition in local market', said the India head of the Centre for Asia Pacific Aviation (CAPA). The first sign of real trouble in Jet became apparent in 2008 when Naresh Goyal entered into an operational tie-up with arch rival Vijay Mallya's Kingfisher. Questions:
a.	What was the reason behind the fall of Jet Airways?
b.	Explain the consequent effect of fall of Jet Airways.
c.	Describe the advantages of competitors in the above case.
